CNAUK SAILORS HONOR WWI FALLEN

STORY BY: PH2 CLIFFORD L. H. DAVIS

Sailors from Commander, U.S. Naval Activities (CNAUK) take part in the 80th Memorial Day ceremonies at Brookwood Memorial Cemetery.

The cemetery, originally known as the London Necropolis, was established in 1852 to house London's deceased since the capital was finding it difficult to locate the increasing population, both living and dead. By 1854, it was the largest cemetery in the world (at that time) and over 240,000 people have been buried there.

It is situated close to Woking, Surrey, and was accessible only by rail from a special cemetery station – The London Necropolis railway station, situated next to Waterloo train & tube station. The cemetery station was demolished after suffering heavy bomb damage during WWII.

A military cemetery was added in 1917 and contains some of the dead from the First World War's various countries that fought in "The Great War," as well as in WWII. A military memorial was built in 1958 to remember all the fallen in both wars; friendly or foe. Memorial Day ceremonies at Brookwood started in 1926.

This year, CNAUK Sailors were joined in the memorial with a color guard from 7th U.S. Army Reserve Command, located in Schwetzingen, Germany, Pershing Doughboys from Weedon, Northampton, and various musicians to play Post, Taps, and Reveille.

Commander, 7th U.S. Army Reserve Command, Brigadier General Richard M Tabor, served as the guest speaker, quoting the famous poem "In Flanders Field" by Lieutenant Colonel John McCrae, and reinforced the ties between the military, communities, and cultures of the British and Americans.

Several floral tributes were laid in between the columns of a classic white stone building that serves as the chapel overlooking the northwest side of the cemetery where 468 U.S. military members from WWI are buried. Within the chapel are the names of the 563 other WWI members that are still classified as "Missing in Action."

Memorial Day is a chance for people to remember those who have died in service. Many CNAUK Sailors chose to participate in the ceremonies as a way of honoring those veterans.

"I think that it's important for all currently serving military personnel to remember those that have gone before us," said Master-At-Arms 2nd Class Scott Gibbs. "It's great to see so many people turn out for such an occasion in a foreign country, both military and civilian alike."

Other Sailors participated because they wanted to show respect for previous military that fought for justice & freedom and for those currently serving and what they are doing now.

CHAPEL CLOSURE MARKS END OF UNIQUE ANGLO-AMERICAN RELATIONSHIP

(LONDON, ENGLAND) —The closure of the Chapel of Faith at the US Navy base at West Ruislip, England, on June 5 brings to an end one of the US military's most successful Anglo-American community partnership programs.

The Chapel was closed down as part of the wider drawdown of what is known as Naval Activities UK London. The command includes RAF West Ruislip, which has variously served the US Navy and Air Force since it was built in 1962. But the chapel has also played an important role in bringing together the US military and the local civilian populations through the power of prayer. Around 90 parishioners attending the final Catholic service were British civilians – these days outnumbering the American's by about 10-1.

The base, which is located at the west end of the London's Central Line underground network, started life as a support station for the USAF's 3rd Air Force Headquarters when it was located near London through to the 1970s. It remained in Air Force hands until the early 1990s when the USAF handed it to the US Navy as support location for military personnel working at the US Navy Headquarters in London, the US Embassy or as part of numerous military exchange programs that still continue.

Church services for the Protestant Faith community ended in September 2005.

The final Catholic service, was celebrated by Bishop George Stack, Auxiliary Bishop of the Archdiocese of Westminster in London. Attending the service was Capt. Steven D. Matts, Commander of Naval Activities (CNAUK), and Cmdr. Chuck Cordon, Executive Officer for CNAUK. The service also included an emotional event with five youngsters receiving the Sacrament of Confirmation.

CDR Michael Zuffoletto, CHC, USN, the Force/Command Chaplain and Parish Priest, has led the Catholic community for the past two and a half years and, with his religious counterparts from the Protestant community, shepherded them through the changes and to the final closure of the stand alone buildings on a plot of land adjacent to the main base.

"You can choose to look at this as an ending or as a new beginning," said CDR Zuffoletto. "We have come a long way together as a community and as two nations. I hope all look at this as a new beginning with new experiences to be shared and new friends to be made as we all move on."

Capt. Matts, who is overseeing the wider drawdown, said:

"The Chapel of Faith at RAF West Ruislip has had a long and distinguished history as a place of worship — not only for military and dependents but also for the local community. The physical presence of this important Anglo-American link may be ending but the relationships created here will continue for a lifetime."

For the congregation however, the closure brings to an end a unique set of bonds forged both by shared religion and location. For British parishioners the church was not only the 'local' church but its regular rotation of military personnel and its extracurricular activities such as summer barbeques and the Sunday Sundaes brought an added appeal.

For around 18 months after 9/11 non-military parishioners had to bring their Passport to Church. In other cases the celebration of American Mothers Day and Father's Day (which take place on different days in the US and UK) added to the occasional surprised confusion for the British nationals.

For many, however, it was about 'community'.

Warren Yoder, 85, a retired civilian civil engineer for the USAF, was one of the longest serving parishioners. Yoder started coming to the Church in July 1968. His wife, Elizabeth was baptized the week prior to the final service and joined the five youngsters to be Confirmed on the last day.

"This has been our spiritual home," he said "We have seen funerals, weddings and baptisms here. It's been a real family. I love 'community' and this has been a wonderful community. I'm proud of my wife Elizabeth and I'm proud of the whole church community — American and British — the strength of our bond is very deep."

Ret. US Navy Captain Adriane de Savorgnani, who started at the church and joined the choir in 1998, was also saddened by the occasion.

"The present choir has been active for 20 years with a regular turnover of choir directors, musicians, priests and chaplains," she said. Singers — no matter what nationality — are united by their love of music and the inspirational message they are able to convey through singing. As St. Augustine observed, "He who sings prays twice".

Ed Brennan a retired Department of Defense School Principal who served as the first parish council president in 1982/83 and a Lay Eucharistic Minister ever since, recalled years of the two communities sharing the joys births, marriages, baptisms, Communion and Confirmations and the sorrows of deaths — including that of his daughter, Maura, in April 2004.

“The West Ruislip Chapel helped create this community spirit where all Christians were involved,” he said. “No matter what religion or nationality we all enjoyed one goal; to serve and love our Lord, Jesus Christ. This is what community – and in my case – Communion was about. It has been an honour to be a part of this church and a part of this community.”

Over time the Church raised thousands of pounds and dollars and had undertaken numerous sponsorship programmes – helping a wide range of American and British charities as well as helping an Orphanage in Thailand and, most recently, working with Cub Scout Pack 81 Transatlantic Council headed by US Navy Commander and Chapel parishioner Philip Raimondo, to package and send more than 110 large boxes of supplies for distribution to natives in the Djubuti area of western Africa.

CDR Zuffoletto and Chaplain's Assistant (RP3) Robert J. Wood have had the duty of winding down the church and dispersing some 1,000 church items including everything from the Stained Glass Windows, the organ, piano, some 500 chairs, the Altar, and ecclesiastical equipment. Stations of the Cross that adorned the walls of the church were given to a Catholic Church in Nigeria while the altar is going to RAF Daws Hill, High Wycombe, where a Canadian Forces chaplain will be conducting Sunday General Protestant services.

Some smaller items such as chalices, altar server robes, vestments will go to other U.S. Navy bases in Europe and a host of local churches in the Ruislip area. Over the years clergy from those other facilities have taken the services at the base as part of a wider exchange. Church records are being returned to the Archdiocese for Military Service USA in Washington D.C. RP3 Wood, from Franklin, Kentucky, will undertake the final closing of the chapel facilities.

The closure of the Church has left a number in a quandary as to what to do next. During the final few months CDR Zuffoletto invited a number of local priests in to take the Mass and introduce themselves and their churches. Still some parishioners remain unsure where they will go even at the last service with some profession that the ‘hands across the sea’ camaraderie between the communities that made it a service that was hard to beat.

The final service concluded with the American and British National Anthems and the hymn Eternal Father. The latter was sung with particular emphasis on its entreaty to protect for those on land, air and sea. There were few dry eyes.

Fr. Zuffoletto added:

“We are two nations united by so many things and we have always adapted to change. This is one of those changes. There have been many wonderful times and shared experiences here. We leave here with sadness but in the realization that buildings don’t build relationships – people do.”

A Letter to Military Children from the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff

I want to take this opportunity to recognize the extraordinary contributions of our Nation's military families, who have faced many challenges - from family separations to frequent moves - with great courage.

I would especially like to acknowledge a special source of inspiration: children of military families.

You are patient and understanding when duty calls and your Mom or Dad cannot attend a soccer game, music recital, birthday party, or other important family or school activity. You are heroes in a quiet, thoughtful way, and I am grateful for the unconditional love you give your Mom and Dad.

Many of you have experienced the sad and sometimes frightening experience of having your Mom or Dad far from home, serving around the globe in places like Iraq and Afghanistan. Through your personal courage and support, you serve this Nation too - and I am proud of you!

Frequent moves are a way of life for the military child. It is never easy to say goodbye to friends and familiar routines, to begin again in a new school, a new neighborhood - and sometimes a new country! But your resilience and self-confidence are strengths that others admire, including your parents.

Growing up in a military family offers some challenges, but it also provides some special rewards. You can be proud of your Mom and Dad for their brave defense of this great country. Your love and support sustains them. So thank you for being there for Mom and Dad. You are American patriots and role models for us all.

Sailors Warned Of VA Data Compromise

WASHINGTON (NNS) — The Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) announced June 3 that active-duty Sailors may be affected by the theft in May of military personnel data.

According to the VA, a duplicate database with data files was stolen from a VA employee's home May 3. While the VA has received no reports that the stolen data has been used for fraudulent purposes, they are asking all veterans to be extra vigilant and to carefully monitor bank statements, credit card statements and any statements relating to recent financial transactions.

Several resources are available for people to go to for more information. The Department of Veterans Affairs has set up a special Web site (www.firstgov.gov) and a toll-free telephone number (800-FED-INFO or 800-333-4636) that feature up-to-date news and information on the data compromise. The site offers tips on how to check credit reports, how to guard against identity theft and whom to call if an individual believes any fraudulent activity is occurring using his or her personal information.

The Navy and Department of Defense are working closely with the VA to determine how many Sailors and other service members may be affected by the compromise of records. Sailors whose information has been compromised will be notified by a letter from the VA and the Navy so they can take the appropriate steps.

Tips on how to watch for suspicious activity include the following:

Closely monitor your bank and credit card statements for fraudulent transactions. Monitoring accounts online is the best way to detect fraud early.

Place a 90-day fraud alert on your credit report, which tells creditors to contact you before opening any new accounts or making any changes to your existing accounts. This action may cause some delays if you are trying to obtain new credit.

It is only necessary to contact one of three companies to place an alert. That company is then required to contact the other two.

The three companies are Equifax (800-525-6285, www.equifax.com), Experian (888-397-3742, www.experian.com) and TransUnion (800-680-7289, www.transunion.com).

Once the fraud alert has been posted, you are entitled to free copies of your credit reports. Review these reports for inquiries from companies you haven't contacted or accounts you didn't open. The alert can be renewed after 90 days.

Sailors are advised to take the following steps if they discover fraudulent accounts or transactions:

Contact the financial institution to close the fraudulent account(s) that have been tampered with.

File a report with the local police department.

File a complaint with the Federal Trade Commission by phone at 877-438-4338, online at www.consumer.gov/idtheft or by mail a letter to Identity Theft Clearinghouse, Federal Trade Commission, 600 Pennsylvania Avenue NW, Washington, DC 20580.

STUDENT REGISTRATION

Dear Parents,

If your child is going to be attending London Central Elementary/High School next year, it is absolutely vital that you register your child in school.

I can not stress the importance of this enough. How many teachers are hired depends directly on how many students are entered into the computer system as enrolled. How much funding for materials and extra-curricular activities given to the school is directly tied to how many students are enrolled.

If you received a registration packet last week, please complete it and return it to school asap.

If you can get it to London Central, terrific. But, if you can't, just send it to us and we'll get it to them.

If your child is going to LCE/HS next year and you need an enrollment packet, please call us at 6678/88 and we'll get you one.

Please help us to provide the best school year possible by enrolling your children immediately.

Thank you very much.

West Ruislip Students Honour Queen Elizabeth II

By Jacqueline K. Mayo
Primary Multiage Teacher

It is always very interesting to learn about different cultures and customs of other countries. The children in the DODDS schools learn about their Host Nation countries, customs and traditions. Much of the information gained generates from the Host Nation teachers.

This month the children that attend the schools in the United Kingdom received many lessons about the monarchy. The teachers prepared lessons about the 80th birthday celebration of Queen Elizabeth II. There was a very special website to celebrate her very special day. The students learned about her life and many of them sent a special email message on the 21st.

The students in the primary grades made a very special card along with a story. They had listened to the book called The Queen's Knickers decided to make a new version called The Queen's Crowns. Once the book was written and illustrated it was sent on to Buckingham Palace. The students are hoping to get a reply about the great story.

On the 21st, the young students made their own crowns with glitter and other items. This was their way of being royalty for the day.

West Ruislip Elementary School Holds Closing Ceremony

By Jacqueline K. Mayo
West Ruislip Elementary School Multiage Teacher

The teachers and the students have been preparing for the closing of the school since the announcement last and other items that make the school so unique.

The closing ceremony was held on Friday, 12 May this year. After 45 years, the children prepared a special program for the public celebrating all the great events that took place at this school. The focus of the ceremony was entitled "On the Road Again." The children sang special songs, recited poetry, and read testimonials on what this school so special. One of the teachers that began his career, Mr. Fred Bennett attended the ceremony. During the presentation of school year. West Ruislip Elementary School opened its doors in 1961. It is located about 25 minutes from the heart of London. Many of the children that attended the school lived in the outlying areas around London. Many of the parents worked in London and areas near the base at RAF West Ruislip.

Back in 2001, the students buried a time capsule on the school grounds to commemorate the 40th anniversary of the school. The capsule contains yearbooks songs and poems, a slideshow showing many of the events that took place over the years was running for the audience to see.

Once the school closes, many of the students will be relocated at London Central Elementary High School. On Friday, 9 June the students at the school will say goodbye to the teachers. We wish the best to all the families, children and the school staff as they embark on new adventures.
